RE: Evidence of Nonprofit Exempt Status of State Agencies

This memorandum is to certify that the University of North Carolina, and each of its constituent institutions and other educational, research, and public service organizations are nonprofit, tax-exempt organizations and that no part of their earnings may lawfully benefit any private shareholder or individual.

As a government agency, and State educational agency, the University of North Carolina and its constituent institutions are nonprofit, tax-exempt organizations. The University of North Carolina is a public, multicampus university, and governmental and educational entity established pursuant to Article IX section 8 of the North Carolina State Constitution and Chapter 116 of the North Carolina General Statutes. The University of North Carolina is comprised of constituent institutions and other educational, research, and public service organizations. Attached to this memorandum is a list of the University of North Carolina's constituent institutions and other organizations to which this opinion and certification applies (Exhibit A).

Pursuant to federal tax law, the University of North Carolina, and each of its constituent institutions, is considered a political subdivision of the State or an "integral part" of the State and, accordingly, is a tax-exempt organization. See Revenue Ruling 71-131. Further, under IRC section 170(b)(1)(A)(ii), the University of North Carolina and its constituent institutions are defined as an "educational institution" and under IRC 170(b)(1)(A)(v), the University of North Carolina and its constituent institutions are a "government unit." Under each of these provisions, contributions made to the University of North Carolina and each of its constituent institutions are tax deductible. The University of North Carolina, and each of its constituent institutions, is a nonprofit, tax exempt organization.

Second, the North Carolina Constitution prohibits the University of North Carolina from using or otherwise allocating its earnings for the benefit of any private shareholder or individual. Article I, § 32 of the North Carolina Constitution provides that "[n]o person or set of persons is entitled to exclusive or separate emoluments or privileges from the community but in consideration of public services." "An emolument is defined as 't]he profit arising from office, employment, or labor; that which is received as a compensation for services, or which is annexed to the possession of office as salary, fees, and perquisites.'" Crump v. Snead, 134 N.C. App. 353, 356, 517 S.E.2d 384, 387 (quoting Black's Law Dictionary 524 (6th ed. 1990)), disc. review denied, 351 N.C. 101, 541 S.E.2d 143 (1999).

As a state agency of the State of North Carolina, the University of North Carolina, and its constituent institutions, is subject to the constitutional prohibition on exclusive and private emoluments and accordingly no part of their earnings may lawfully benefit any private shareholder.

In sum, I certify that the University of North Carolina, and each of its constituent institutions and other educational, research, and public service organizations are nonprofit, tax-exempt organizations and that no part of their earnings may lawfully benefit any private shareholder or individual.

Very truly yours,
